In addition to providing training for public and private sector clients, she has conducted mediation training for Federal, state, and local agencies, and retiring judges.

MEDIATION: Mediation is a process where a neutral third party, the mediator, helps the parties figure out the issues in a dispute and find an appropriate solution that serves everyone's needs. The parties make the decisions. The mediator guides and shapes the process. Mediation is private and confidential so it enables the participants to custom design a solution that is appropriate for the people around the table. E. Kandell, Esquire

ABOUT THE PROGRAM:

Participants will receive training in mediation theory and practice, active listening techniques, ethical considerations in mediation, and policies, procedures, laws and regulations for employing mediation. Participants will learn how to utilize this knowledge in a mediation setting through power points, role plays, and group and individual exercises. By the end of the training, participants will be able to clearly articulate the steps of the mediation process.
